Website Goals

- Evangelism. We need to clearly spell out the Sandpiper features and benefits to each class of user: Supplier, Receiver, Management and Worker bee.

- Communication. We need to have a "go to" location for current users so they can see project status, roadmaps, new features, etc. This would mostly be in the form of Blog postings.

- Technical Documentation. We need a place to document the Sandipiper API and the "reference implementation". The entire site should be indexed for search.

- One-Stop-Shop. We need to provide links to the GitHub projects, Commuinifier Discussion and end-user sites (and success stories).

- Multiple Languages. With English, French and Spanish initially supported. It is important that we reach the largest possible audience.

Toward this end, we have decided to use Hugo (https://gohugo.io/), a static-site generator (built with Go, but that's not required). We've also decided to use the Docsy (https://www.docsy.dev/) template (maintained, but not officially supported by Google).

The public GitHub repo for the website can be found here (https://github.com/sandpiper-framework/sandpiper-web).

We are using render.com (https://render.com/) to host the site free of charge, with https and auto deployments from GitHub pushes.

The render.com url (until we add a custom domain) is https://sandpiper.onrender.com/ (https://sandpiper.onrender.com/)
